

Neolithic Style Guide

Version 1.0

0.1 Indentation

We use tabs. In an IDE where we can specify, we use a tab width of four spaces.

0.2 Braces

Opening braces are placed on the same line as the structure that uses them.

After an opening brace there is usually an extra blank line before nested code begins.

There is no blank line before a closing brace.

0.3 Class structure

Related methods are grouped together. Such groups are visibly separated with comments.

All the class fields are at the start of the class.

After that, there come the constructors.

In the middle are the remaining methods.

All getters and setters are at the very end of the class.
